No, unfortunately, if this was a suit on a note, or on an open account, we could use an affidavit, but I don't think so in this case.

Sorry to just be getting back to you. We have been extremely busy these last couple of weeks with systems upgrades. That being said, MR. Cedars is asking if it's possible to do this by deposition rather than having to actually appear in court.

Brother Sean,

Finally got him served after you and I discovered where he lived, and he failed to answer, so I am taking a Preliminary Default Judgment this week. Two days after I take the Preliminary Default, I need you to come to court with me to take the final judgment.

That will consist of you taking the stand and giving the judge a two minute explanation of how he came to owe us the money. No other lawyers involved, no cross examination.

will you be in town all next week???

Yeah, I tried to serve him with the suit there, but they served his secretary, and that doesn't work when you're serving a doctor who is a party to the suit, so I need to reserve him

Great, I found an address for a Daniel Joseph Wiltz in Youngsville, and I want to compare his signature to the Act of Sale, to see if it's the same guy so I can finally serve him with that suit over our 5K overpayment to him.....

We should be able to get signatures from other checks that he deposited hopefully and I will see if we have a copy of a contract that he signed as Coroner or as Medical Advisor for the Jail.

I will look into his addresses we have on file
